

About Face: Hair and Body Products for Holiday Travel

Still getting ready for Thanksgiving and holiday travel? Don't forget to throw together some body, hair and skincare products that can pamper and protect.

by Roxana Hadadi

Last week, I discussed the best makeup products to pack for my holiday travels to Pennsylvania, but I can't just grab a few lip balms and mascaras for the ride, right? Theoretically I will have to wash my face, keep my hair from getting greasy and — wait for it — shower, and theoretically I need items to help me do that.

And if I get a chipped nail? Or my makeup starts to smear? Or I feel the bags developing under my eyes thanks to endless hours driving around Pennsylvania farmland? Yup, I've got products for that.

+ Everything in one place. (Top row of photo)

What's easier than grabbing one box and being done? Make things really easy for your life by picking up Somme Institute Mobile Travel Kit, with small sizes of the brand's five-step regimen of products: Nourishing Cleanser; Transport, an exfoliant; Serum, with vitamin C; A-Bomb, a moisturizer; and Double Defense, a lotion with SPF ($85, Somme Institute). The company, organized by leading dermatologists in the U.S., knows its stuff, so the products are specifically formulated to work well together. Similarly simple to take with you is Clarisonic's Mia Sonic Skin Cleansing system ($119, Clarisonic), a compact, rechargeable and waterproof electrical cleanser that helps reduce oily areas, fine lines and acne. Charge it and then use it; the rotating brush, designed by the same inventor of the Sonicare toothbrush, will zoom its way into cleansing your face.

